Believe Me,
I Say Unto You

Believe Me, I Say Onto You

2009/2014, 2018

How bad can a translation be, and still remain protected by copyright?

In “Believe Me I Say Onto You” The Beatles’ lyrics have been run back and forth through Google Translate via the languages of the European Union, until the limitations of the software transformed them to absurdity. Sometimes similar to teenage poetry, sometimes echoing Dada, these poems have very little resemblance to the source, but they are still in their entirety based on the lyrics of the British pop group.

How bad can a translation be before it is considered a separate work?

FRAUD ON THE HILL

Day by day
Just up the hill
It's still a smile, full support
But nobody wants to know
You can see only one fool
Without answer

But fraud on the hill

Personally, my head
See the world tour.

How well
Head in the clouds
He speaks, and thousands of voices
But no one has heard or sound, it is obvious that Seems to achieve

But fraud on the hill
The sun fell
Personally, my head
See the world tour.

And a glance
I can not say what he wants to do, and not show their feelings

But fraud on the hill
The sun fell
Personally, my head
See the world tour.

Oh oh oh
Again and again and again.

I never noticed
You know that stupid
Waiting

Fraud on the hill

The sun fell
Personally, my head
See the world tour.

Or
Again and again and again

Because this is the only song on the north
Even though the clothes will be used
Or what's the price, or if my hair is brown
If only the song below.
If you listen to late at night
You may think the team is not so
But the game looked
No matter what you play chords
What can I say and time of day?
Because this is just north of the song.
Even though the clothes will be used
Or what's the price, or if my hair is brown
If only the song below.
If you think harmony
It's a little darker, and the key
You're right, this is not possible.
No matter what you play chords
What can I say and time of day?
I told someone.

Certain types of coincidence are measured many times

What do you think there is something special, a smile?

As a kid

Anyone who understands

Jack knife

You have sweaty hand

Some hypotheses have been measured this year

I do not know what he wanted to hear that concern

You can change me together

You can change me together

You understand, when you're alone you can change with me

Yes, hello oh!

Ho, ho!

Yes!

Ho, ho, ho, ho!

Ho, ho!

Big man (yes)

A walk in the park

House

AFRAID OF THE dARK

A particular type of loneliness is measured that

You think you feel, but could not reach the concept of truth

You can change me together

You can change me together

You understand, when you're alone you can change with me

Hey!

Web Wahoo! Oops!

Good day bulldog! Good day bulldog!

Good day bulldog! Good day bulldog!

[Hi, what is that tone?

Oops!

D'Huh?

I said, Vibu, WOW!

Do you want to know more?

Wooaah ha ha ha!

You are wonderful! That's right! Both the man and looked forward to!

Give it to me, man, hurry! I have ten children, huh!

O-ho! Ha ha ha ha ha ha!

Quiet boy, calm!

OK.]

Good day bulldog!

Good day bulldog!

WHEN I'M SIXTY AND FIVE YEARS OLD

When I'm older, I turned my hair

For many years

You just send Valentine

There is a bottle of birthday greeting wines

If they were quarter to three

We're looking for the door

I still have Bonnney, it will help me

When I'm sixty and five years old

You are more

And if you say a word

Can I stay with you

It can be practical and repair a fuse

When the lights travelled away

You can combine my tokens' trains

On Sunday morning

In the garden, without the skin

Requiring more

I still have Bonnney, it will help me

When I'm sixty and five years old

Every summer, we can pay rent

On Island Eight, if not too high

We take care and save ourselves

Nine on the knee

True, Chuck to Dave

Send me a postcard, leave me a line

Position Statement

State exactly what you want to say

Yours sincerely, you'll lose

Give your answer, fill in the form my always

I still have Bonnney, it will help me

When I'm sixty and five years old

WHEN THE WIND BLOWS IN MY OPINION

While the world around me

If the world is round ... aaaaaahhhhhh

When the wind blows in my opinion, many

Since the wind is yellow aaaaaaaahhhh

Love is love is all NY

Love is your love

Why is the sky blue, make me cry

Why the sky is blue aaaaaaaahhhh

Aaaaahhhhhhhhhh
